

About Philip Smith

I want to start with something that might surprise you coming from an insurance broker: I got into this work because I know what it feels like to be lost.

I came to the United States from South Africa in the year 2000 with no formal qualifications and no safety net. I had to figure everything out on my own, in a country I was still learning. That experience never left me. So when I sit across from a senior who feels confused and a little overwhelmed about their Medicare choices, I understand that feeling from the inside. That is why I do this work. And that is why I do it the way I do.

My name is Philip Smith. I am the owner of Trucare Insurance Agency, based in Sarasota, Florida. I have been helping people navigate Medicare for fifteen years. In that time, I have helped clients choose from Medicare Advantage plans, Medicare Supplement plans, Prescription Drug plans, Special Needs Plans, Indemnity plans, cancer plans, and fixed annuities. The product list is long. But the real work is always the same: helping a person feel confident about a decision that matters to their health and their future.

Medicare is not simple. The rules change every year. The plans change. What was right for you last year may not be the right fit today. My job is to stay on top of all of that so you do not have to. When you call me, I am not going to hand you a brochure and wish you well. I am going to sit with you, ask the right questions, and make sure the plan we land on actually fits your life.

One thing my clients tell me often is that I make Medicare feel manageable for the first time. That is the goal every single time.

I am available seven days a week. A call is always the best way to reach me, and if I do not pick up, it is because I am with another client. I will get back to you. That is a promise I have kept for fifteen years, and I intend to keep it.

Most of my new clients come to me through referrals. Someone who trusted me told someone they care about to call me. That is the highest compliment I know. It tells me that the people I serve feel good enough about their experience to put their name behind it. I do not take that lightly.

If you are coming onto Medicare for the first time, or you are wondering whether your current plan is still the right one, give me a call. No jargon. No pressure. Just a real conversation with someone who genuinely wants to help.

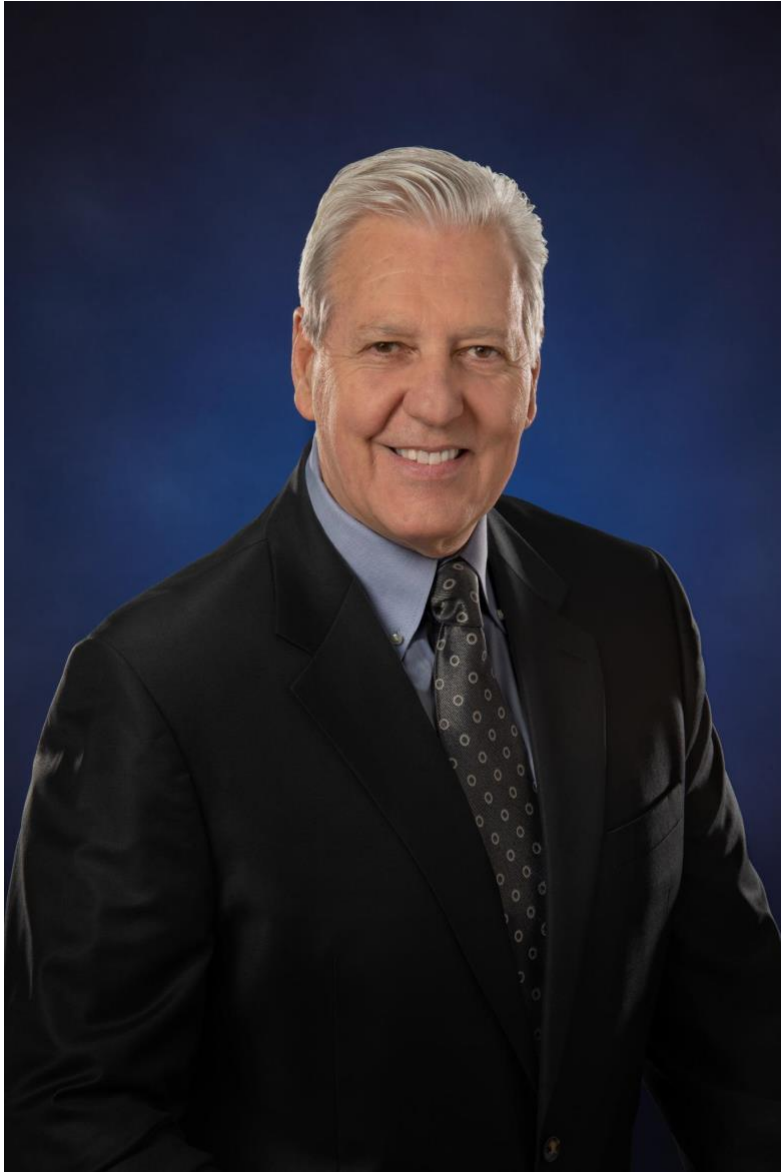

Respectfully, Philip Smith Trucare Insurance Agency (941) 400-0109

Q&A (the website below to see how they laid out the Q&A)

<https://faithinsurancesolutions.com/>

Who is eligible for Medicare?

Generally, people that are Turning 65, are a US citizen or resident of 5 years (sometimes different rules apply depending on marriage status), and have worked more than 40+ working quarters are eligible for zero-premium part A.

Another way to become eligible for Medicare is to become disabled and receive SSDI for 24+ months, as well as automatic for ALS, and ESRD also known as end stage renal disease on the 4th month of receiving your dialysis treatments.

What does Medicare Part A Cover?

Medicare Part A Helps cover:

- Inpatient care
- Home health care
- Skilled Nursing Facility
- Hospice

What does Medicare Part B cover?

Medicare Part B helps covers your outpatient services:

- Services from doctors and providers
- Durable Medical Equipment
- Diagnostic Services
- Many Preventative services like screenings, shots and vaccines

What is Part D Coverage?

- Cost for prescription drug plans, shots and vaccines
- Plans that offer Medicare drug plans are run by private insurance companies that follow Medicare guidelines.

What is Medicare Part C or Medicare Advantage Plans?

There have been a few different 'Plan C's' throughout the years, but the most common one is referred to as a Medicare advantage plan. Medicare Advantage Plans are a type of Medicare Health Plan or Medicare supplement used to help limit the out-of-pocket cost that Medicare doesn't cover.

When you are enrolled into Medicare part A & B you are covered for 80% of your health care costs. So what's left? 20%! That's where I come into help. I am a licensed insurance broker that helps to educate the differences in a Medicare Advantage plan and a MediGap plan, as well as Prescription Drug Plans.

When you are enrolled into Medicare part A & B you are covered for 80% of your health care costs. So what's left?

20%! That's where I come into help. I am a licensed insurance broker that helps to educate the differences in a Medicare Advantage plan and a MediGap plan, as well as Prescription Drug Plans.

So what are Medicare Advantage plans and what do they cover?

The tricky part with MA's, is there are literally 100's of different options throughout the country. To be able to tell you exactly what the co-pays are for each plan is almost impossible as each carrier is different with different plans and different eligibility requirements. They also are determined on the area in which you live, some are income-based and others are qualified by different chronic conditions. However, to put it in a nutshell, they each come with a maximum out of pocket which protects you if you experience extensive health problems throughout the year. Generally, MAPD (Medicare Advantage also known as Part C) has very low premiums and the majority of them have a $0 additional premium. Some of the highlights of MA's are they have enhanced benefits like dental, vision, hearing, fitness memberships, transportation, over-the-counter allowances, and part B givebacks that are appealing to a lot of the American population. MA plans can also include your PDP (Prescription Drug Plan) which is necessary when becoming eligible for Medicare to enroll into or else you could face having a LEP (late enrollment penalty).

What is a Medigap "Supplement" plan?

Medigap policy is an insurance policy that helps fill "gaps" in Original Medicare and is sold by private companies. Original Medicare pays for much, but not all, of the cost for covered health care services and supplies. Medigap policies are sold by private companies, and can help pay for some of the costs that Original Medicare doesn't, like copayments, coinsurance, and deductibles.

Some Medigap policies also cover certain benefits Original Medicare doesn't cover, like emergency foreign travel expenses. Medigap policies don't cover your share of the costs under other types of health coverage, including Medicare Advantage Plans, stand-alone Medicare drug plans, employer/union group health coverage, Medicaid, or TRICARE.

What Do I Need to Know About Medicare Part C?

- If you are enrolled in both Parts A and B, then you are eligible for C.
- Enrolment in Medicare Part C is voluntary.
- Many people choose to stick to their original Medicare A & B plans and instead, enroll in Medigap.

What is a late enrollment penalty?

A late enrollment penalty is a penalty that you are given when you do not use your election periods properly and enroll into the plans you are eligible for at that time. How does that apply to Medicare?

There are a few times you can encounter a LEP(late enrollment penalty). One of the ways is not enrolling into Medicare Part B once you become eligible. Becoming eligible is typically when you turn 65 or as stated early after you've been on SSDI (Social Security Disability) for 24+ months. If you are enrolled into SSDI then you automatically are enrolled into Medicare at your eligibility month. When you turn 65, unless you are taking social security you are not. So if you don't enroll during your 7 month window, which is 3 months before the month of your 65th birthday, the month of, and 3 months after, then you will miss your enrollment for Medicare Part B and need to wait until the GEP(General Election Period) which is January 1st – March 31st of every year. The GEP is not to be confused with AEP (Annual Election Period) which is for plan changes of MA and PDP plans.

The next LEP is not enrolling into your Prescription Drug Plan when you enroll into Medicare Parts A and/or B. This is not something that is automatically done and you must contact a licensed insurance broker certified in Medicare Health plans (like us, Faith Insurance Solutions) to do so.

Which MediGap plan should I purchase?

All MediGaps are the same no matter which private carrier you choose from, it's the letters of the MediGap that determine the coverage. Above you will see a chart that explains, side by side, the differences in coverage based on the letter you choose.

The most popular plans to date in 2021 are going to be your Plan F, Plan G and Plan N. You will see in the chart above that there are only slight differences in the 3 plans. Plan F we will call your Cadillac plan, it covers every deductible and coinsurance. Plan G would be the second plan with top benefits, if you notice the only difference between the 2 are the Part B deductible.

Some Medigap policies also cover certain benefits Original Medicare doesn't cover, like emergency foreign travel expenses. Medigap policies don't cover your share of the costs under other types of health coverage, including Medicare Advantage Plans, stand-alone Medicare drug plans, employer or union group health coverage, Medicaid, or TRICARE.

How do I know when I should sign up?

For most people, your Initial Enrollment Period (A 7-month window in which you should enroll in Part A and Part B to avoid late enrollment penalties) is the best time to sign up for Medicare.

You can determine the dates of your exact Initial Enrollment Period using our IEP Calculator here.

How do I get Medicare?

Social Security offers you a quick online application for Medicare that can be completed in fewer than ten minutes. You do not have to be receiving income benefits to get Medicare. Just visit the Social Security website and follow the links about applying for Medicare.

Is it mandatory to go on Medicare when you turn 65?

No, but there are significant penalties for late enrollment unless you have other creditable medical coverage, such as from a large employer.

What age does Medicare start?

At age 65 you are eligible for Medicare, regardless of whether you are already taking Social Security income benefits. Some people also qualify for Medicare earlier than 65 due to a disability or illness.

FINDING THE RIGHT FIT FOR YOUR HEALTHCARE NEEDS

Medicare Supplement Vs Medicare Advantage

Medicare Supplement

Freedom: See any doctor in the USA that accepts Medicare.

Predictability: The lowest out-of-pocket costs when seeing doctors.

Simplicity: No referrals needed to see a specialist.

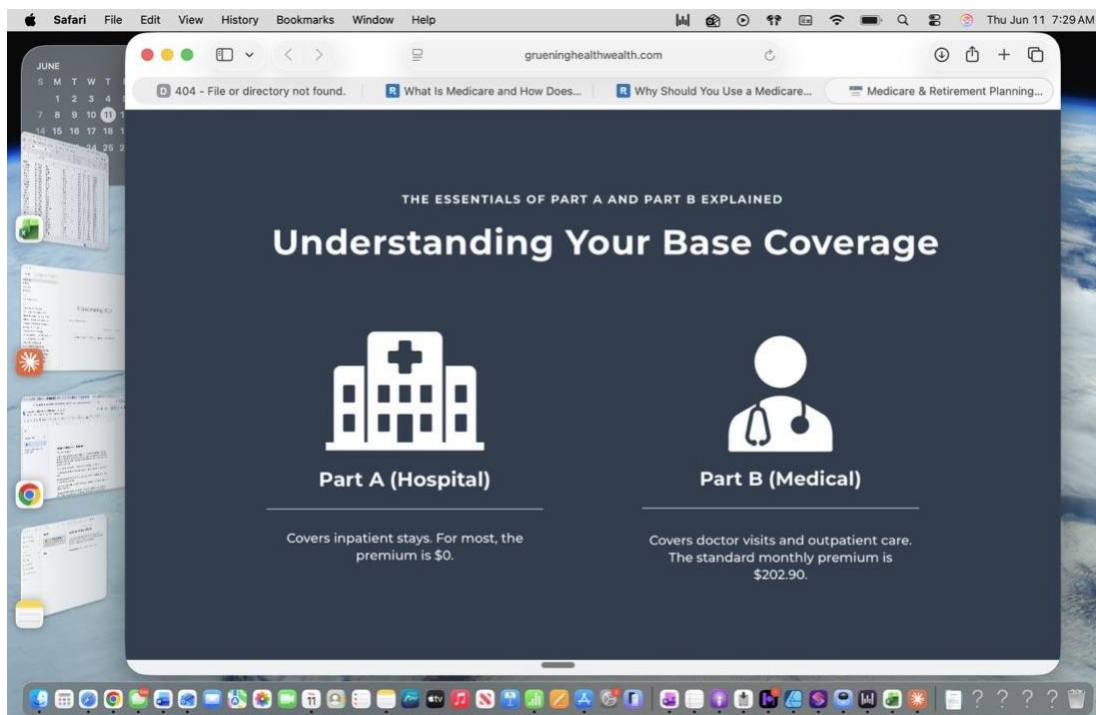

Medicare Advantage

Value: Plans as low as $0 monthly premium.

Extras: May include dental, vision, gym, and OTC benefits.

All-in-One: Typically includes Part D prescription coverage.

Closing The Gaps In Your Coverage

Medicare is designed to pay your doctors and hospitals, but it wasn't built to cover the personal financial toll of a major illness.

The Risk

A diagnosis of Cancer, Heart Attack, or Stroke often comes with "hidden costs"—travel for specialists, home modifications, and non-medical bills that continue even when you can't work.

The Exposure

These expenses can quickly drain a retirement nest egg because they fall outside of traditional medical coverage.

The Solution

We recommend Umbrella Coverage for every client. These plans pay a tax-free cash benefit directly to you, giving you the freedom to focus on healing instead of finances.

A STEADY APPROACH TO YOUR FUTURE

Your Medicare Guide

EVERYTHING YOU NEED TO KNOW, ALL IN ONE PLACE

Explore the essentials below to see how the pieces fit together. When you're ready to build your personal roadmap, we're here walk you through it.

Expertise Is Better When It's Personal

Medicare is a lifelong journey, and every journey is easier with a guide who knows the terrain.

Step 1: Timing Is Everything

Medicare doesn't happen automatically. Knowing when to act is the first step in avoiding lifelong penalties.

The 7-Month Window: You have a 7-month Initial Enrollment Period (IEP). It starts 3 months before your 65th birthday, includes your birth month, and ends 3 months after.

The "Still Working" Scenario: If you have creditable coverage through an employer with 20+ employees, you might be able to delay Part B. We can help you compare your work plan vs. Medicare to see which is more cost-effective.

The GHW Rule: We recommend starting your research 6 months early to ensure a seamless transition without a gap in coverage.

The Bottom Line: Don't wait for the mail to tell you what to do. Let's look at your calendar together.

Step 2: The Foundation

Step 3: The Big Choice (Supplement vs. Advantage)

Step 4: Prescription Protection (Part D)

Some Interesting Copy That we could use

You know what a NASA rocket scientist, a plumber, and a kindergarten teacher all have in common? Medicare would confuse every single one of them.

And I get it. I really do. When seniors first sit down with me, the most common thing I hear is, "Philip, I just want someone to tell me what to pick." I wish it were that simple. But the honest truth is, the right plan for you depends entirely on your situation, and no two situations are the same.

There are hundreds of plans out there. What works beautifully for your neighbor may be completely wrong for you, and vice versa.

When I sit down with a client, I am looking at your doctors, your prescriptions, your budget, and what matters most to you in your day-to-day life. Almost every time, one plan rises to the top as the clear fit. But getting there takes a real conversation, not a guess.

That is exactly why working with a Medicare advisor makes such a difference. I know the plans, I know the details, and I know the questions to ask. My job is to take all of that complexity off your plate so you can walk away with coverage that actually fits your life.
